Astrology And Vibrational Fields

By Kent & Renee Miller

The entirety of creation was constructed as a communication network to promulgate universal consciousness. Each universe has parameters for specific learning to be had. Each universe is further divided into sectors that create more specific areas for learning. There are a multitude of beings at various levels of understanding, from the most basic of understanding, such as humans, to the highest levels that are simply incomprehensible to humanity. We can only enter an area within the universe/s where we fit in at our level of understanding. Otherwise, the understanding would not only be lost, but has the potential to cause such severe vibrational imbalance that it would be detrimental.

Everything is vibrational, from the lightest of gases to the densest of metals. Even our thoughts have vibration, which is aligned to the various levels of understanding. At its smallest expression, each atom is made up of vibration. It's not the protons or neutrons, or even the quarks, it is vibration that makes everything in the physical universe. And it is vibration that has the capacity to imbue certain characteristics onto another vibration. Thus, vibration can be used to manipulate matter. For example, it is the heat vibration that cooks and solidifies the egg.

The gaseous makeup of the atmosphere surrounding any livable planet produces a unique vibration. The combination of the various gases, each with its own vibration, together creates a vibrational field that has an effect on all life forms on that planet. The vibrational field around the sphere dictates how all life forms—plants, animals, and all entities—behave on that sphere. On Earth, the nitrogen, carbon, oxygen, etc. are not only found in the gaseous atmosphere, but also within the matter found on Earth. They impart a vibrational attribute that determines how matter behaves. That includes the DNA that makes up our bodies.

Within our solar system, each planet is made up of its own blend of various gases and elements, which create a unique vibrational field for each sphere. Each sphere imparts its own behavioral aspect within its vibrational release, having an effect on surrounding matter. The planetary alignments within a given system interact with each other, creating a vibrational reaction within the various alignments. In our solar system, the various planetary alignments have an impact on Earth and her inhabitants. Outside our solar system, other nearby planets impart vibrational attributes on the planets in our solar system.

Creator dictates what information is to be released to push all of creation to ever-expanding levels of understanding All That Is. “All That Is” is the sum-total of all intellectual and conscious energy at any given moment. It is in an ever-changing state as it strives to meet the goals of expanding consciousness, dictated by universal laws. The releases of information are continuous and are in vibrational form. The “word,” mentioned in ancient texts, is the vibrational nomenclature released, traveling throughout the universes, interfacing and imbuing all matter with its vibration. This causes all matter to take on varying degrees of the new vibration, changing the behavior of the matter to some degree.

The passing universal vibrational energy interacts with each planet's specific behavioral characteristics, imbuing all fields with new characteristics that affect events. The vibrational fields are therefore in flux, influencing the interactions between the passing universal energy and each planet and its solar system as a whole. The vibrational fields are always in flux as the planets are moving in their orbits and creating various alignments. These vibrational fields affect the possibilities for certain events to play out on livable planets within its reach.

We live in a vibrational field of varying degrees of density that makes up the physical three-dimensional world we live in. We are creating events and observing events as we learn about vibration. We are learning about who we are and where we fit in within the entirety of All That Is, vibrationally. It is the events that play out that are meant for us to observe, to study, and to come to conclusions about how the event occurred in the first place. These events span interactions within ourselves, outward in our interrelationships with all things on Earth, and expands outward as we examine events in our solar system and the cosmos.

To summarize, we have chosen to incarnate onto a sphere called Gaia, Earth, that is a vibrational match at our level of understanding, providing lessons through our observation of the field and the events that play out in the field. It is a vibrational field affected by the changing vibrational field of our solar system. Our solar system is affected by the vibrational fields of the outer planets. All fields are under the influence of the vibrational releases from Creator, promulgating All That Is to ever-greater levels of understanding.

Kent & Renee Miller | The Augmentation of Man

Kent Miller unexpectedly discovered that he was able to telepathically communicate with the Ancients (ancient teachers of the Creator) and spiritual professors. Kent and wife, Renee, have compiled these lessons into The Augmentation of Man book series: A Study in Renaissance and Acquiescence of Humanity, available on Amazon. Our videos can be found on YouTube, BitChute, Brighteon, Rumble, and on major podcast platforms at The Augmentation of Man with Kent and Renee Miller. You can also sign up to receive our weekly video/podcast via email at our website, VERDIANCE.com.
